WEST BETHEL CHILDREN'S CENTER
At the Center this week we are working at the wood-working bench, playing in the block area and the water table, painting, reading in the library, making tissue paper collages, and origami (which is Japanese paper cutting). We're busy.

We had a terrific time at McDonald's last Thursday. This week we're visiting Solal Buchanan's farm. We're also excited about the new loft in our playground. It now has slides and a roof. We also have a new swing. The jungle-gym has been repaired and painted. Things are looking good outside. Now we're looking forward to putting a tether ball ball out there and some new bikes and wagons. We'd like to thank "Bucky" at the Western Auto Store for trying to fix some of our old bikes. It was very appreciated by the staff and children.

We are getting ready for the new Head Start, Day Care program to begin Sept. 25. Our first parent meeting and pot luck supper is Sept. 7 at 6 o'clock at the Center. The staff is looking forward to seeing new and old friends. If you have a child coming to the Center this fall please come to see what kind of a program we offer your children as well as you. We're proud of it and would like to share it.

Damian Morrill is our star of the week. He is doing a great job and showing us some interesting pictures.

Looking forward to meeting you. Have a good week.

The last week of vacation rolls around. Many cars and lots of shoppers, getting ready for school. The supper Aug. 26 was a success. Thanks to all the cooks, helpers and patronage. Lots of visiting from folks away. Some were from Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Mexico, South Paris, Norway, West Paris, surrounding towns and Stanley Ukekele from Portland, Conn. Ellis Ellingwood was at the hall Thursday and put in several plug-ins for the coffee pots and refrigerator. You should have seen all the pies and hot rolls. A meeting at the hall Wednesday, Sept. 6, 7 p. m.

"Root" Lawrence was a patient at Stephens Memorial Hospital from Tuesday to Thursday noon for throat surgery. Owen Bonney is still a patient there.

Mrs. Janet Cohen is working at Ames, Norway.

Eveline Barrett and Doris Lawrence went to the Rumford hospital Sunday to see their sister, Alice Goff, 78, who was in an accident Saturday noon. They found her in fair condition and very black and blue or purple. Looked like she'd met up with Muhammed Ali. The other lady, the driver, had a few bruises around her mouth and chest pains. They also called on their niece and husband, the Norman Abbotts.

The garage of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Perham is progressing.

Last Wednesday, I found a door to a trailer in the road near Vernal Hall's, so I stood it up against a tree stump then told Vernal about it. It had a license plate 303-711. Hope the owner found it O. K.

Clarice Gibson, Corres. — Today is Tuesday and another foggy morning. Yesterday we left the house about 5 a.m. for Portland Jetport as Ira was going to fly down to visit his brother, Cpl. Wilfred Gibson at Beaufort, S.C. Going out on this road it was so foggy Ira said that it was a good thing that we knew the road well that we would be off it. We picked up Dad in Norway and as it was clear at Portland did not think any more about it. On the way home we stopped at Oxford to see Mr. and Mrs. Ben Tucker, Jr., and Andy. We had been back when the house only a short while when we got a call from Ira that he had missed his plane leaving from Boston as the fog was so heavy they only got down a minute before takeoff of the plane that he was supposed to be on. He got on a later flight so was only four hours later getting in to Savannah, Ga., than he intended to be.

Eleanor Smith of East Stoneham visited Mr. and Mrs. Lester Butters Tuesday, Aug. 22. 31tf

This is the hour we cannot deter, to each a child-lover of us goes. Down garden paths to pluck the lavender. And white and purple from sprawling rows, And to bring the fragrant armfuls into rooms— With wistful looks at those we do not take. But leave to bend before the black frost's will. Mrs. Colista Morgan, Corres.

On Tuesday morning, this week, the sun and I rose almost together, a short time after five. I stepped outside. No bird songs but a kind of restless twittering. There was a slight mist over the pond. The temperature was at a comfortable degree. The sky promised a beautiful day.

This was the day that five of us had planned to ride the Mount Washington on Lake Winnepesaukee in New Hampshire.

When we climbed into the car, sunshine filled all the valley. We drove leisurely along the sweep of land, past shaded banks, past underfoot forest floors, past little forest of fall flowers. There were gardens crying for water or green with plenty.

The villages through which we passed were interesting. Some had well kept houses shaded by ancient trees.

Minute after minute went by. Overhead a cup of clouds floated just above the mountain tops.

The voice of the wind was still that day. Hardly a breath moved the hanging branches.

We approached mountains which we had viewed in the distance. These mountains have a character of their own. Their contours and summits are rounded by age and the dense growth of the forests softens their image.

The good roads have eliminated the mountains as barriers and so the shared intimacy of people living on the lands that give these states a special quality. I have learned that whatever has life has individuality. So this small scenic wonderland was indeed fascinating. It will assume a larger meaning with every year that passes; every feature glowing, radiating mountain beauty.

After riding for some time we all at once came to the lake with into something surprisingly beautiful. There it lay at the southern edge of the White Mountains, New Hampshire's largest lake, 72 square miles of water, deep blue against the mountains standing sentinels over it.

We were early enough to sit and eat at leisure, a lunch of sandwiches and fruit, just below us a few doves were bathing. They would dip their heads, lie on their sides then fly away to flutter their wings and shake out the water. Ducks were busy all about.

We boarded the boat at 12:15 and swung out into the water. We were on our way anxious to see what was in store for us.

The pilot pointed out and told us about places of interest. We passed picturesque coves, bustling marinas, quaint old New England villages, as well as beautiful sandy beaches. There were hundreds of islands. One especially I remember was tiny itself and had a tiny house and garage fitted on it.

It was a full afternoon excursion covering fifty miles in 3 1/2 hours. We moved from deck to deck following the shade or to see better. It was a region of great natural beauty. Looking over the side we seemed to be afloat on a sea of whipped cream, as the boat churned the surface into white caps.

Then we returned to our journey home with thoughts of the day. It was now late afternoon, the sun slating downward reaching toward night, leading to a confident tomorrow.

The Maine State Police report loose objects inside a motor vehicle become deadly projectiles when a crash occurs.

"Several crash studies illustrate the importance of securing all packages carried inside a motor vehicle and its trunk," said Col. Allan H. Weeks, Chief of the Maine State Police.

Five tires and wheels carried in the trunk can be dangerous if not securely fastened. A crash impact could send a loose tire and wheel through the back seat into the passenger compartment injuring passengers, Col. Weeks said.
